DETAILED ACTION

1. The evidence submitted is insufficient to establish a conception of the invention prior to the effective date of the Liversidge reference. While conception is the mental part of the inventive act, it must be capable of proof, such as by demonstrative evidence or by a complete disclosure to another. Conception is more than a vague idea of how to solve a problem. The requisite means themselves and their interaction must also be comprehended. See Mergenthaler v. Scudder, 1897 C.D. 724, 81 O.G. 1417 (D.C. Cir. 1897).

For instance, claim 37 specifically recites:
An electronic mail client comprising:

a conventional electronic mail processor, said conventional electronic mail processor extracting and displaying message text encapsulated in a received electronic mail;

and a voice conference processor, said voice conference processor identifying a voice conference identifier encapsulated in said received electronic mail, displaying at least one selectable icon in response to detecting said voice conference identifier, and responsive to a selection of said at least one selectable icon, establishing a voice conference call between selected conference call nodes specified by said voice conference identifier.

In contrast to claim 37, Disclosure BOC8-2000-0053 merely discloses that when an e-mail is received from an e-mail sender, the e-mail recipient can choose to click on the symbol or icon and a voice/phone conference is initiated. However it is not obvious to have an electronic mail processor and a voice conference processor for performing the claimed extracting, displaying, identifying and establishing features. For these reasons the evidence submitted is insufficient to establish a conception of the invention prior to the effective date of the Liversidge reference.

2. The evidence submitted is insufficient to establish diligence from a date prior to the date of reduction to practice of the Liversidge reference to either a constructive reduction to practice or an actual reduction to practice because Applicant has failed to provide evidence of due diligence from January 3, 2001 through March 1, 2001.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (e) the invention was described in-
- (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).
- 4. Claims 1-37 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(e) as being anticipated by Liversidge et al, U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2002/0076025 (hereinafter Liversidge).

Regarding claim 1, Liversidge discloses an email communication method comprising the steps of inserting in an email message a voice conference identifier comprising a voice conference call list identifying conference call nodes; transmitting said e-mail message to a recipient at a recipient node, wherein responsive to said recipient selecting said voice conference identifier, a voice conference call between selected ones of said identified conference call nodes is established (paragraphs 0134-0137 and 0181-0191).
